A Smart Investment

"Economically speaking, early childhood programs are a good investment, with inflation-adjusted annual rates of return on the funds dedicated to these programs estimated to reach 10% or higher. Very few alternative investments can promise that kind of return." - Ben Bernanke, Chairman, Federal Reserve

Investment in early childhood education isn't just good for children – it's also good for New York's economy. Every dollar invested in high quality early education returns up to $14 in savings, by reducing remedial and special education; juvenile justice services and welfare support.
